

Two-Column Layout

This is the first column of text. It demonstrates a basic two-column layout where text flows naturally from the first column to the second column when the first column is full.

Additional content in the first column. This paragraph adds more text to show that the column break works correctly and text appears in the right column.

This text should appear in the second column after the explicit column break. Column breaks force remaining content to the next column.

Final paragraph in the second column. This verifies that text positioning is correct in the right column.
