 Header beside the picture

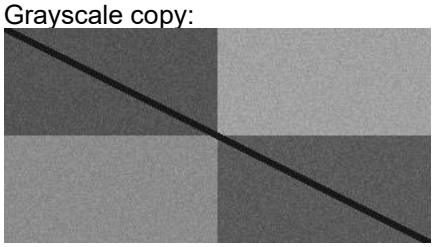

One media part drawn by every picture on this page

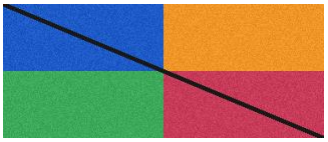

The same picture cropped differently in two table cells:

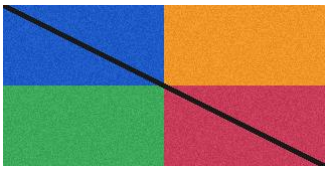

Right half cropped	Top and bottom quarter cropped

Grayscale copy:

A floating copy of the picture sits at the right margin with square wrapping. This paragraph flows around it on the left, line after line, until the text has passed the bottom of the picture and the lines take the full column width again. The floating copy uses the same media part as every other picture on this page, in the header, the table cells and the text box.
