text continues to fill the space beside the image and eventually flows below it at full page width.

This section has a right-aligned floating image. The body text should wrap to the left of the image.

This text wraps to the left of the right-aligned green image. The image is anchored to the right side of the column. Body text fills the available space on the left.
